Subject:	Proposal for a DIRECTIVE OF THE EUROPEAN PARLIAMENT AND OF THE COUNCIL on unfair trading practices in business-to-business relationships in the food supply chain - Confirmation of the final compromise text with a view to agreement

I. INTRODUCTION

1. The Commission Proposal for a Directive of the European Parliament and of the Council on unfair trading practices in business-to-business relationships in the food supply chain was published on 12 April 2018. The proposal aims at limiting unfair trading practices that result from unequal bargaining power in the food supply chain which is translated into the general objective of “viable food production” of the Common Agricultural Policy. The more specific objectives of the proposal are to maintain market stability, enhance agricultural producers’ income and improve agricultural competitiveness.

II. STATE OF PLAY

2. Under the Bulgarian Presidency, the proposal was presented by the Commission in the Agriculture and Fisheries Council on 16 April 2018 and a first exchange of views in the Special Committee on Agriculture (SCA) took place on 23 April 2018. Technical examination of the proposal was carried out by the Working Party on Horizontal Agricultural Questions (Unfair Trading Practices) on 30 April and 23 May 2018. The SCA had an exchange of views on 11 June 2018.
3. Under the Austrian Presidency, the Working Party further examined the proposal on 3 July and 17 July 2018. The Presidency presented its compromise texts to the SCA on 10 and 17 September 2018 and received guidance for further work. On 1 October 2018, the SCA gave to the Presidency a mandate to start negotiations with the European Parliament.<sup>1</sup>
4. In the European Parliament, Paolo De Castro (S&D, IT) was appointed as rapporteur for the proposal on behalf of the Committee on Agriculture and Rural Development (AGRI) which is responsible for the file. In addition, three other Committees gave opinions on the proposal: IMCO (rapporteur Marc Tarabella (S&D, BE)), ENVI (rapporteur Pilar Ayuso (PPE, ES)) and DEVE (rapporteur Linda Mcavane (S&D, UK)). The report of rapporteur De Castro was adopted on 1 October 2018 and the Plenary session adopted its first reading negotiating mandate on this file on 25 October 2018.

5. The first trilogue took place on 25 October 2018 and the second one on 7 November 2018. The Presidency briefings on the outcomes of these trilogues took place respectively at the SCA meetings on 6 and 12 November 2018. Furthermore, on 12 November 2018, the SCA gave to the Presidency a revised mandate<sup>2</sup> for the third informal trilogue which took place on 21 November 2018. Delegations were briefed on the outcome of this trilogue at the SCA meeting on 26 November 2018. In preparation for the fourth trilogue on 6 December 2018, the Presidency received a revised mandate<sup>3</sup> from the SCA on 5 December 2018. The fourth trilogue was held on 6 December 2018 and the SCA was briefed on 10 December 2018. The fifth trilogue took place on 12 December 2018 and it was followed by the briefing at the SCA on 17 December 2018.
6. The sixth trilogue was held on 19 December 2018. As a result of that trilogue, the European Parliament and the Council reached an agreement ad referendum on the compromise text that is set out in Annex I<sup>4</sup> to this note.

III. OUTCOME OF NEGOTIATIONS

7. Explanations of the main compromises made at the trilogue on 19 December 2018 and some general assessments are presented below.

8. On the issue of scope of operators (Article 1), the Council mandate of 1 October 2018 maintained the restricted scope that was suggested in the Commission proposal (SME suppliers versus non-SME buyers). However, in Article 9 of the Council mandate, it was clarified that Member States may maintain or introduce rules which are stricter than those laid down in this Directive, and that this Directive is without prejudice to national rules aimed at combating unfair trading practices that are not within the scope of this Directive. In its written opinion<sup>5</sup>, the Council Legal Service (CLS) considered that if the scope should be extended to different categories of suppliers and buyers, the Directive could still be validly based on Article 43(2) TFEU provided that the legislature is able to show that such extension is necessary for the attainment of at least one of the objectives of the common agricultural policy set out in Article 39 TFEU and complies with the principle of proportionality. In its mandate, the European Parliament extended the scope to cover all operators, irrespective of their size. In order to find an agreement on the issue of scope, both co-legislators had to make steps towards each-other's positions. As a compromise, certain categories were created according to turnover of operators, thereby extending the protection of suppliers. In the view of the Presidency, the compromise found is a balanced one which is also respecting the opinion of the CLS.
9. Regarding the list of unfair trading practices (Article 3), the Council chose the minimum harmonisation approach and therefore maintained a short list of well defined eight unfair trading practices set out in the Commission proposal, with some drafting modifications. The European Parliament extended the list of unfair trading practices by adding more than 40 additional unfair trading practices. During the negotiations, it turned out that several of these practices should not be covered in this Directive for different reasons, for example they are already covered by national contract law. The Council also reminded that by means of Article 9, Member States may go beyond the rules set out in the Directive. However, in order to find an agreement, the Council could accept the inclusion of certain additional unfair trading practices, in some cases in modified wording. In the view of the Presidency, the compromise found is a balanced one.

10. In general, the Council was in favour of a minimum harmonisation approach because several Member States do not have national rules on unfair trading practices. In addition, this is a first time Directive and there is no regulatory experience at the Union level in this field. The Council was of the view that it would be more appropriate to have such a Directive that all Member States are able to properly transpose, with an option for Member States to go beyond if they so wish (Article 9) and for the Commission to carry out an evaluation in future (Article 12). From its side, the European Parliament suggested a more extensive harmonisation (for example, obligations for the enforcement authorities, creation of national observatories, long list of unfair trading practices). In order to find an agreement, the Council had to show flexibility regarding some suggestions from the European Parliament (for example to cover third country buyers). However, the Presidency is of the view that in broad lines, the provisionally agreed compromise text still represents the minimum harmonisation approach.
11. During the negotiations, the Presidency and its counterpart in the European Parliament sought to bring the positions of the two institutions closer together, with the aim of achieving an outcome at the first reading which is acceptable to all negotiation partners. Even if on certain issues the Presidency had to show some flexibility regarding the concerns expressed by the European Parliament, it was able to follow the mandate given by the SCA in broad lines. The Presidency considers that this is a balanced agreement that should be acceptable for delegations. Considering that the term of office of this composition of the European Parliament will end in spring 2019, the Presidency is of the view that the adoption of this Proposal is a matter of urgency.

IV. CONCLUSION

12. The Special Committee on Agriculture is therefore invited:

- to confirm the final compromise text, as contained in Annex I to this note;
- to authorise the Presidency to send a letter to the Chair of the European Parliament's AGRI committee, confirming that, should the European Parliament adopt its position at first reading, in accordance with Article 294(3) of the TFEU, in the form set out in the final compromise text contained in Annex I to this note (subject to revision by the legal linguists of both institutions), the Council would, in accordance with Article 294(4) of that Treaty, approve the European Parliament's position and the act shall be adopted in the wording which corresponds to the European Parliament's position;
- to agree to suggest to the Council to make the joint statement by the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission set out in Annex II to this note;
- to take note of the statement by the European Parliament set out in Annex III to this note.

Whereas:

- (1) Within the agricultural and food supply chain, significant imbalances in bargaining power between suppliers and buyers of agricultural and food products are a common occurrence. This asymmetry in bargaining power is likely to lead to unfair trading practices, when larger and more powerful trading partners seek to impose certain practices or contractual arrangements in relation to a sales transaction which are to their advantage. Such practices may e.g. (i) grossly deviate from good commercial conduct, be contrary to good faith and fair dealing and be unilaterally imposed by one trading partner on the other, or (ii) impose an unjustified and disproportionate transfer of economic risk from one trading partner to another; or (iii) impose a significant imbalance of rights and obligations on one trading partner. Certain practices might be manifestly unfair even when both parties agree to them. A minimum Union standard of protection against unfair trading practices should be introduced to reduce the occurrence of such practices which are likely to have a negative impact on the living standards of the agricultural community. The minimum harmonisation approach in this Directive allows Member States to adopt or maintain national rules which go beyond the unfair trading practices listed in the Directive.

- (2) Three Commission communications since 2009<sup>8</sup> have focused on the working of the food supply chain, including the occurrence of unfair trading practices. ■ The Commission suggested desirable features for national and voluntary governance frameworks of unfair trading practices in the food supply chain. Not all of those features have become part of the legal framework and voluntary governance regimes in Member States, leaving the occurrence of such practices still in the focus of the political debate in the Union.
- (3) In June 2016, a European Parliament resolution<sup>9</sup> invited the Commission to submit a proposal for a Union legal framework concerning unfair trading practices. In December 2016, the Council invited the Commission to undertake, in a timely manner, an impact assessment with a view to proposing a Union legal framework or non-legislative measures to address unfair trading practices<sup>10</sup>. An impact assessment has been prepared by the Commission which was preceded by an open public consultation as well as targeted consultations. In addition, during the legislative process the Commission has provided information, demonstrating that comparatively few of the largest operators represent a considerable share of the overall value of production.

<sup>10</sup> Council Conclusions of 12 December 2016, Strengthening farmers' position in the food supply chain and tackling unfair trading practices.

- (4) In 2011, the Commission-led High Level Forum for a Better Functioning Food Supply Chain endorsed a set of principles of good practice in vertical relations in the food supply chain agreed by organisations representing a majority of the operators in the food supply chain. Those principles became the basis for the Supply Chain Initiative launched in 2013.
- (5) Different operators are active in the agricultural and food supply chain at the stages of production, processing, marketing, distribution and retail of agricultural and food products. The chain is by far the most important channel for bringing agricultural and food products from “farm to fork”. Those operators trade agricultural and food products, that is to say primary agricultural products, including fishery and aquaculture products, as listed in Annex I to the Treaty ■, and ■ products not listed in that Annex but processed for use as food using products listed in that Annex.
- (6) While business risk is inherent in all economic activity, agricultural production is particularly fraught with uncertainty due to its reliance on biological processes, and in addition, as regards agricultural production, the exposure to weather conditions. This uncertainty is compounded since agricultural and food products are to a greater or lesser extent perishable and seasonable ■. In an agricultural policy environment that is distinctly more market-oriented than in the past, protection against unfair trading practices has become more important for operators active in the agricultural and food supply chain ■.

- (7) In particular, such unfair trading practices are likely to have a negative impact on the living standards of the agricultural community. This impact is understood to be either direct as it concerns agricultural producers and their organisations as suppliers or indirect, through a “cascading” of the consequences of the unfair trading practices in a manner that negatively effects the primary producers in the agricultural and food supply chain.
- (8) The number and size of operators vary across the different stages of the agricultural and food supply chain. Differences in bargaining power, which are also commensurate with the economic dependence of the supplier on the buyer, are likely to lead to larger operators imposing unfair trading practices on smaller operators. A dynamic approach in which the relative size of the supplier and the buyer is taken as the basis should provide better protection against unfair trading practices for those operators who need it most. Unfair trading practices are in particular harmful for small and medium-sized operators in the agricultural and food supply chain. As regards mid-range enterprises, such enterprises should also be protected against unfair trading practices in the interest of avoiding the cost of such practices being passed on to smaller operators. The cascading effect on farmers appears to be particularly significant for undertakings with a turnover of up to EUR 350 million.

- (9) A majority of ■ Member States, but not all of them, have specific national rules that protect suppliers against unfair trading practices occurring in business-to-business relationships in the agricultural and food supply chain. Where reliance on contract law or self-regulatory initiatives is possible, fear of retaliation against a complainant as well as financial risks involved, limit the practical value of these forms of redress. Certain Member States, which have specific rules on unfair trading practices ■, therefore entrust administrative authorities with their enforcement. However, Member States' unfair trading practices rules - to the extent they exist - are characterised by significant divergence.

- (10) The protection provided by this Directive should benefit agricultural producers and natural or legal persons that supply agricultural and food products, including producer organisations, whether recognised or not, and associations of producer organisations, whether recognised or not, including cooperatives, subject to their relative bargaining power. Those suppliers are particularly vulnerable to unfair trading practices and least able to weather them without negative effects on their economic viability. As regards the categories of producers that should be protected under this Directive, it is noteworthy that a large part of farmer-constituted cooperatives fall into its so-called mid-range tier. As the financial pressure on small and medium-sized enterprises caused by unfair trading practices often passes through the chain and reaches agricultural producers, rules on unfair trading practices should also protect small and medium-sized intermediary suppliers at the stages downstream of primary production. Protection of intermediary suppliers such as manufacturers and distributors of agricultural and agricultural processed products can also serve to avoid trade diversion away from agricultural producers and their associations, which produce processed products, to non-protected suppliers.

- (11) This Directive should cover commercial transactions irrespective of whether they are carried out between undertakings or between undertakings and public authorities, given that public authorities, when buying agricultural and food products, should be held to the same standards. The Directive should apply to public authority buyers regardless of turnover related considerations.
- (12) Certain services ancillary to the sale of agricultural and food products should be included in the scope of this Directive.
- (13) Suppliers in the Union should be protected against unfair trading practices engaged by buyers in the same Member State, by buyers in another Member State but also by buyers established outside the Union. This can avoid possible unintended consequences of protection that would only apply to buyers inside the Union, such as forum shifting. Suppliers established outside the Union should also enjoy protection against unfair trading practices when they sell agricultural and food products into the Union. Not only are they liable to be equally vulnerable to such practices but such coverage will also countervail unintended trade diversion towards non-protected suppliers that would undercut the desired positive effects of protection of suppliers in the Union.

- (14) The relevant rules should apply to business conduct by larger operators against operators who have less bargaining power. A suitable approximation for relative bargaining power is operators' turnover. While being an approximation, such a criterion enables predictability for operators concerning their legal rights and obligations under this Directive. An upper limit concerning protection should prevent that protection is afforded to operators who are not or significantly less vulnerable than their smaller partners or competitors. Therefore, this Directive establishes scales according to which protection is afforded in a step-approach according to turnover-based categories of operators in the agricultural and food supply chain.
- (15) As a majority of Member States already have national rules on unfair trading practices, albeit diverging, it is appropriate to use the tool of a Directive to introduce a minimum protection standard under Union law. This should enable Member States to integrate the relevant rules into their national legal order in such a way as to enable cohesive regimes. Member States should not be precluded from maintaining and introducing on their territory stricter national rules providing for a higher standard of protection against unfair trading practices occurring in business-to-business relationships in the agricultural and food supply chain, subject to the limits of Union law applicable to the functioning of the internal market and if they are proportionate.

- (16) Member States should also be able to maintain or introduce national rules designed to combat unfair trading practices that are not within the scope of this Directive, subject to the limits of Union law applicable to the functioning of the internal market and if such rules are proportionate. Such national rules could go beyond this Directive, for example as regards the size of the buyers and suppliers, protection of buyers, the scope of products and the scope of services. Such national rules could also go beyond the number and type of prohibited unfair trading practices listed in the Directive.
- (17) Such national rules would apply alongside voluntary governance measures, such as national codes of conduct or the Supply Chain Initiative. The use of such voluntary measures of alternative dispute resolution between suppliers and buyers is explicitly encouraged, without prejudice to the right of the supplier to submit a complaint or turn to civil law courts.
- (18) As unfair trading practices may occur at any stage of the sale of an agricultural and food product, ■ before, during or after a sales transaction, Member States should ensure that the provisions of this Directive should apply to such practices whenever they occur.

- (19) When deciding whether an individual trading practice is considered unfair it is important to reduce the risk of limiting the use of fair and efficiency-creating agreements agreed between parties. As a result, it is appropriate to distinguish practices that are foreseen in clear and unambiguous terms in supply agreements or subsequend agreements between parties from practices that occur after the transaction has started without having been agreed beforehand, so that only unilateral and retrospective changes to those relevant terms of the supply agreement are prohibited. However, certain trading practices are considered as unfair by their very nature and should not be subject to the parties' contractual freedom **■ .
- (20) Late payments for agricultural and food products, which also include perishable products, and short notice cancellations of orders of such perishable products impact negatively on the economic viability of the supplier without off-setting benefits. Such practices should therefore be prohibited. In this context, it is appropriate to provide for a definition of perishable agricultural and food products for the purposes of this Directive. Definitions used in food law related acts of the Union aim at different objectives, such as health and food safety, and are therefore not appropriate for the purposes of this Directive. A product should be considered perishable if it can be expected to become unfit for sale within 30 days from the last act of harvesting, production or processing by the supplier, regardless of whether the product is further processed after sale, and regardless of whether after sale the product is handled in accordance with other applicable rules, in particular food safety rules.

Perishable products are normally used or sold quickly. Payments for perishable products that are made later than 30 calendar days after delivery, or the end of an agreed delivery period where products are delivered on a regular basis, or the date of establishment of the amount payable, are not compatible with fair trading. In order to provide increased protection to farmers and their liquidity, suppliers of other agricultural and food products should not have to wait for payment longer than 60 calendar days after delivery, or the end of an agreed delivery period where products are delivered on a regular basis, or the date of establishment of the amount payable. These limitations should only apply to payments related to the sale of agricultural and food products, and not to other payments such as supplementary payments from a cooperative to its members.

In accordance with Directive 2011/7/EU of the European Parliament and of the Council<sup>11</sup>, the date of establishment of the amount payable for an agreed delivery period may be considered, for the purposes of this Directive, as the date of the issuance of the invoice, or the date of its receipt by the buyer.

- (21) The late payment provisions laid down in this Directive constitute specific rules for the agricultural and food sector in relation to the provisions on the payment periods set out in Directive 2011/7/EU. They should not affect agreements concerning value sharing clauses within the meaning of Article 172a of Regulation (EU) No 1308/2013 of the European Parliament and of the Council<sup>12</sup>. In order to safeguard the even running of the school scheme pursuant to Article 23 of Regulation (EU) No 1308/2013, the late payment provisions laid down in this Directive should not apply to payments made by a buyer (aid applicant) to a supplier in the framework of the school scheme. Taking into account the challenge for public entities providing healthcare to prioritise healthcare in a way that balances the needs of individual patients with the financial resources, these provisions should also not apply to public entities providing healthcare in the meaning of Article 4(4)(b) of Directive 2011/7/EU.

- (22) Grapes and must for wine production have special characteristics in that the grapes are harvested only during a very limited period during the year, but used for the production of wine which will in some cases only be sold many years later. In order to cater for this special situation, producer organisations or interbranch organisations have traditionally developed standard contracts for the supply of these products which provide for specific payment deadlines with instalments. As these standard contracts are used by suppliers and buyers for multiannual arrangements, they provide agricultural producers not only with the security of long standing sales relations, but also contribute to the stability of the supply chain. Where such standard contracts, as drawn up in agreements by recognised producer organisations, interbranch organisations or associations of producer organisations, have been made binding by the Member States under Article 164 of Regulation 1308/2013 before 1 January 2019, or where this extension of the standard contracts is renewed by Member States without any significant changes of the payment terms to the disadvantage of suppliers of grapes and must, the late payment provisions laid down in this Directive should not apply to contracts between suppliers of grapes and must for wine production and their direct buyers. Member States are obliged to communicate the respective agreements of recognised producer organisations, interbranch organisations and associations of producer organisations according to Article 164 (6) of Regulation (EU) 1308/2013 to the Commission.

- (23) Notices of cancellation for perishable products of less than 30 days are considered unfair as the supplier would not be in a position to find an alternative outlet. However, for products in certain sectors even shorter cancellation periods might still leave sufficient time for suppliers to sell the products elsewhere or use them themselves. Member States therefore should be allowed to provide for shorter cancellation periods in duly justified cases for such sectors.
- (24) Stronger buyers should not change agreed contract terms unilaterally, e.g. de-list products covered by a supply agreement. However, this should not cover situations in which there is an agreement between a supplier and a buyer that specifically stipulates that the buyer can specify at a later stage a concrete element of the transaction in respect of future orders. This could for instance concern the quantities ordered. An agreement is not necessarily concluded at one point in time for all aspects of the transaction between the supplier and the buyer.
- (25) A supplier and a buyer of agricultural and food products can freely negotiate a sales transaction, including the price. These negotiations can also include payments for services rendered by the buyer to the supplier, such as listing, marketing and promotion. However, where a buyer charges a supplier payments which are not related to a specific sales transaction, this should be considered unfair and should be prohibited under the Directive.

- (26) While there should be no obligation to use written contracts, the use of written contracts in the agricultural and food supply chain may help to avoid certain unfair commercial practices. Therefore, in order to protect suppliers from such unfair practices, where the terms of a supply agreement have already been agreed, suppliers or their associations should have the right to request a written confirmation. In such cases, the refusal by a buyer to confirm in writing the terms of the supply agreement should be considered as an unfair trading practice and be prohibited. In addition, Member States may identify, share and promote best practices concerning long-term contractualisation, aimed at strengthening the bargaining position of producers within the agricultural and food supply chain.
- (27) This Directive does not harmonise the rules on the burden of proof to be applied in the proceedings before the national enforcement authorities, nor does it harmonise the definition of supply agreements. Therefore, the rules on the burden of proof and the definition of supply agreements are those laid down by national law of Member States.

- (28) Under this Directive suppliers can file complaints against certain unfair trading practices. Commercial retaliation by a buyer or the threat thereof, e.g. by delisting products, reducing the quantities of products ordered or stopping certain services which he provides to the supplier such as marketing or promotions on the suppliers' products, against a supplier's exercise of his rights should be prohibited and treated as an unfair trading practice.
- (29) The costs of making available on the market, stocking, displaying or listing agricultural and food products are normally borne by the buyer. As a consequence, it should be prohibited under this Directive that a supplier is charged payment, to be made either to the buyer or to a third party, for those services, unless such a payment has been agreed in clear and unambiguous terms at the conclusion of the supply agreement or in any subsequent agreement between the buyer and the supplier. Where such a payment is agreed, it should be based on objective and reasonable estimates.
- (30) For contributions by a supplier to the costs of product promotion, marketing or advertising, including promotional displays in stores and sales campaigns to be considered fair, they should be agreed in clear and unambiguous terms at the conclusion of the supply agreement or in any subsequent agreement between the buyer and the supplier, otherwise they should be prohibited under this Directive. Where such a contribution is agreed, it should be based on objective and reasonable estimates.

- (31) Member States should designate enforcement authorities so to ensure an effective enforcement of the prohibitions laid down in this Directive ■ . Those authorities should be able to act either on their own initiative or by way of complaints by parties affected by unfair trading practices in the agricultural and food supply chain or whistle blower or anonymous complaints. An enforcement authority might find that there are not sufficient grounds to act on a complaint. Administrative priorities may also lead to such insufficient grounds. If the authority finds that it will not be able to give priority to acting on a complaint, it should inform the complainant and give reasons. Where a complainant requests that his identity remain confidential because of fear of retaliation, the enforcement authorities of the Member States should take the appropriate measures.
- (32) If a Member State has more than one enforcement authority, it should designate one single contact point with a view to facilitating effective cooperation with the enforcement authorities of other Member States and with the Commission.
- (33) In order to ensure an effective enforcement of the prohibition of unfair trading practices, the designated enforcement authorities should have all necessary resources, staff and expertise.
- (34) Suppliers might find it easier to lodge a complaint with the enforcement authority of their own Member State e.g. for linguistic reasons. In terms of enforcement, filing a complaint with the enforcement authority of the Member State in which the buyer is located might however be more effective. The supplier should be given a choice to which authority he wants to address the complaint.

- (35) Complaints by producer organisations, other organisations of suppliers and associations of such organisations, including representative organisations, can serve to protect the identity of individual members of the organisation who ■ consider themselves exposed to unfair trading practices. Other organisations with a legitimate interest in representing suppliers should have the possibility to submit a complaint, at the request and in the interest of a supplier, provided that such organisations are independent non-profit-making legal persons. Enforcement authorities of the Member States should therefore be able to accept and act upon complaints by such entities while protecting the procedural rights of the buyer.
- (36) The enforcement authorities of the Member States should have the necessary powers and expertise to carry out investigations. The empowerment of the authorities does not mean that the authorities are obliged to use these powers in each individual investigation they carry out. The powers of the enforcement authorities should for example enable them to effectively gather any factual information and they should have the power to order the termination of a prohibited practice, where applicable.
- (37) The exercise of the powers conferred by this Directive on enforcement authorities should be subject to appropriate safeguards which meet the standards of general principles of Union law and the Charter of Fundamental Rights of the European Union, in accordance with the case law of the Court of Justice of the European Union, including the respect of the buyer's rights of defence.

- (38) The existence of a deterrent, such as the power to impose or initiate fines, e.g. with courts, and other appropriate penalties and the publication of investigation results, including information about the buyer having committed the infringement, can encourage behavioural change and pre-litigation solutions between the parties and should therefore be part of the powers of the enforcement authorities. Fines may be particularly effective and dissuasive. However, it should be the decision of the enforcement authority in individual investigations which of its powers it will exercise and whether it will impose or initiate a fine or another appropriate penalty.
- (39) The Commission and the enforcement authorities of the Member States should cooperate closely so as to ensure a common approach with respect to the application of the rules set out in this Directive. In particular, the enforcement authorities should provide each other mutual assistance, for example by sharing information and assisting in investigations which have a cross-border dimension.
- (40) To facilitate effective enforcement, the Commission should help organise regular meetings between the enforcement authorities of the Member States where ■ relevant information, best practices, new developments, enforcement practices and recommendations with regard to the application of the provisions laid down in this Directive can be shared. ■

- (41) To facilitate those exchanges, the Commission should establish and manage a website which contains references to the national enforcement authorities including information on the national acts of transposition.

I

- (42) The Commission should have an overview of the implementation of this Directive in the Member States. In addition, the Commission should be able to assess the effectiveness of this Directive. To this end, the enforcement authorities of the Member States should submit annual reports to the Commission. These reports should, where applicable, provide quantitative and qualitative information on complaints, investigations and decisions taken. In order to ensure uniform conditions for the implementation of the reporting obligation, implementing powers should be conferred on the Commission. Those powers should be exercised in accordance with Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council<sup>13</sup>. The Committee for the Common Organisation of the Agricultural Markets should assist the Commission in this procedure.

<sup>13</sup> Regulation (EU) No 182/2011 of the European Parliament and of the Council of 16 February 2011 laying down the rules and general principles concerning mechanisms for control by Member States of the Commission's exercise of implementing powers (OJ L 55, 28.2.2011, p. 13).

- (43) In the interest of an effective implementation of the policy in respect of unfair trading practices in business-to-business relationships in the agricultural and food supply chain, the Commission should review the application of this Directive and submit a report to the European Parliament, the Council, the European Economic and Social Committee and the Committee of the Regions. The review should assess, in particular, the effectiveness of national measures aimed at combating unfair trading practices in the agricultural and food supply chain and the effectiveness of cooperation between enforcement authorities. The review should also pay particular attention to whether protection of ■ buyers of agricultural and food products in the supply chain – in addition to the protection of ■ suppliers – in the future would be justified. The report can be accompanied by relevant legislative proposals, if appropriate.

(44) Since the objectives of this Directive, namely laying down a minimum Union standard of protection by harmonising Member States' diverging measures relating to unfair trading practices, cannot be sufficiently achieved by the Member States, but can rather, by reason of their scale and effects, be better achieved at Union level, the Union may adopt measures, in accordance with the principle of subsidiarity as set out in Article 5 TFEU. In accordance with the principle of proportionality, as set out in that Article, this Directive does not go beyond what is necessary in order to achieve those objectives,

HAVE ADOPTED THIS DIRECTIVE:

Joint statement by the European Parliament, the Council and the Commission on transparency of the agricultural and food markets

The European Parliament, the Council and the Commission stress that the transparency of agricultural and food markets is a key element of a well-functioning agricultural and food supply chain, in order to better inform the choices of economic operators and public authorities as well as to facilitate the understanding of operators on market developments. The Commission is encouraged to continue its ongoing work to enhance market transparency at EU level. This may include the strengthening of the work on EU market observatories and improving the collection of statistical data necessary for the analysis of price formation mechanisms along the agricultural and food supply chain.

Statement by the European Parliament on buying alliances

The European Parliament, while acknowledging the possible role played by alliances of buyers in creating economic efficiencies in the agricultural and food supply chain, stresses that the current lack of information does not allow for an evaluation of the economic effects of such alliances of buyers on the functioning of the supply chain.

In this regard, the European Parliament calls on the Commission to launch without delay an in-depth analysis on the extent and effects of these national and international buying alliances on the economic functioning of the agricultural and food supply chain.
